LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT DEVELOPMENT

The cornerstone of effective business execution is to get things done through others. This is the fundamental role of good leadership. Leaders define the company culture by setting goals and priorities, by being actively involved, and by putting the right people in the right jobs that are also energized and optimistic.

These seminars will help you assess the gaps in your company's leadership capabilities and will provide ready-to-use strategies for improvement.

LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT DEVELOPMENT

Accountability That Works

Study accountability in the context of continuous quality improvement. Create greater team effectiveness by ensuring that each task within a project has an owner; learn to be accountable without being defensive, and create accountability-based questions that focus on results. Create a safe environment for accountability with full comprehension of the five core areas of accountability.

Applied Strategic Planning

The goals of the organization are met by effective leaders who make decisions with the strategic plan in mind. Learn to align long- and longer-term strategy with the mission statement, and measure strategic goals against vision, values, and culture. Work with performance analysis and gap analysis. Examine successful strategy for implementation and monitoring.

Building Commitment to Change

Organizational change can strengthen and improve performance; it requires skillful leadership. Garner authentic commitment to the new direction as quickly as possible by understanding the emotions that employees will experience during progressive stages of change. Recognize the self-defeating attitude, and skillfully redirect to overcome resistance. Keep organizational objectives on track in the face of change by building solid commitment from your team. Learn to create a climate that will accept and encourage changes.

LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT DEVELOPMENT

Collaborative Conflict Resolution

Differentiate between "functional" and "dysfunctional" conflict and provide positive guidance toward a resolution while retaining the goals of the organization. Practice a collaborative model for conflict transformation by encouraging creative options. Manage conflict that arises within teams. Assess your personal conflict management style and learn how to best influence positive outcomes.

Preventing Harassment in the Workplace

Maintain a healthy and comfortable workplace environment by understanding sexual harassment issues, and pro-actively diffusing inappropriate behavior. A study of the policies, and procedures for reporting harassment situations will motivate leaders to actively protect team members (and the organization) from inappropriate behavior and potential litigation.

Cultural Diversity in the Workplace

Lead a team that leverages the advantages of a culturally diverse composition. Learn techniques to overcome barriers that stand in the way of a diverse workforce. Distinguish between valuing differences, and managing diversity.

Delegating Successfully

Your staff will become underutilized and dissatisfied if you lack delegation skills. Explore a model for delegating workload and identify criteria for selecting the right person for the task.

Goal Setting

Become adept at formulating goals that are specific, measurable, achievable, realistic, time-based, and aligned to the organization's overall mission and strategy. Learn an approach to creating action plans that help ensure that goals and objectives are achieved.

COMMUNICATION & INTERPERSONAL SKILLS

Assertive Communication

Communication is the number one contributor to leadership success. Assertiveness is a useful communication tool. Its application is contextual; it is not appropriate to be assertive in all situations; employees use of assertiveness may be perceived as an act of aggression by others. This workshop provides awareness of the many styles of the communication process.

Becoming a Master Communicator

Your company does have a voice - it is the collective written communication emanating from each employee, at all levels of service. Ascertain that each key professional within your organization performs optimally when composing written documents for internal and external distribution. This powerful suite of communication modules includes the following five workshops:

Write it Right - scrupulous attention to flawless spelling and word usage. Advance to audience, organization and content. Identify and avoid common errors.

E-Writing for E-Maniacs - Composing, distributing, and managing electronic forms of written communication requires careful attention. Learn to leverage this primary form of correspondence, and avoid inherent mistakes.

Special Writing Applications- Tight, exciting messages that demand attention are no accident. Learn the art of the call to action.

What's In and What's Out - Revisit acceptable business language and voice. Achieve contemporary flair while retaining a professional image.

Powerful Presentations - Learn to liberally and confidently apply the techniques that make a presentation spark, pop and sizzle. Put a stop to the usual disorganized, boring presentations.

SELLING AND ADVANCED SELLING SKILLS

In a highly competitive environment, there is no substitute to communication skills whether with internal or external customers. The ability to connect with others, to get the message across, and influence others through win-win strategies is what differentiates successful and professional sales consultants from others.

Selling and Influencing for Results

Reinforces the crucial elements of FAB (Features, Advantages, and Benefits) of a value-add strategy and mindset.

Customer Centered Selling Skills

Practice effectively probing for customer needs in a conversational manner, rather than interrogating. Participants will learn to develop and influence the customer's needs so that the solution becomes the product. Strategies for building additional business based on the initial sale will be presented.

Negotiating Skills

Recognizing negotiation opportunities, how to prepare for a negotiation, how to achieve a "win-win" outcome- these are skills required for success inside the organization, and when working with customers. Study the rules of negotiation, and learn techniques that will make your negotiations more effective.

CUSTOMER SERVICE

Millions of words have been written about customer service and how to create a corporate culture around this theme. Customer Service used to be all about transactions- make a quality product that results in a profitable sale. In today's economy, it is imperative that everyone in your company does a good job with internal and external customers. Today's customer is the next person in line who receives your output, whether he/she is at the next desk or halfway around the world. A financial transaction no longer defines the customer. Nothing you do at work is more important than tending to your customer.

CUSTOMER SERVICE

Internal Customer Service: Working Together to Make Things Work

build motivation and engagement toward continuous improvement by creating awareness of internal customers. This module provides clarity about the impact of positive inter- and intra-departmental relationships. The focus is on sustaining collaborative relationships, learning specific techniques for clarifying responsibilities, and increasing commitment to organizational goals. An analysis of the complementary aspects among all personality styles aids in the reduction of friction and an awareness of the value of diverse styles within a successful organization.

Customer Relationships: Essentials of Customer Service

A comprehensive analysis of human behavior characteristics allow both veterans and new hires, alike, to elevate customer service quality from good to fantastic.

Attitude is Everything

Improve crucial first impressions and the continued satisfaction of customers by learning and incorporating great attitude components, including active listening skills and positive body language.

Servicing the Angry Customer

Explore strategies for approaching each customer style and become adept at working with difficult customers. Participants will be encouraged to practice techniques allowing a calm, controlled demeanor while servicing the really angry customer, including strategies for handling harsh language.

Respecting Everyone's Differences

This course will emphasize the benefits of showing respect to customers; identify the dangers of stereotyping, and provide the tools to respond in a consistently positive manner.
